

What living in Great Moncton can offer you outside of work:

Greater Moncton is the largest urban center in New Brunswick encompassing the cities of Moncton, Dieppe and the town of Riverview. This vibrant region is renowned for offering both affordable housing opportunities and an eclectic mix of entertainment venues and various must-see destinations, providing that perfect balance between city amenities and small-town living. This richly historic area offers a wonderfully unique place to live and provides options for all lifestyles: small cities, college towns, and resort areas for recreation and leisure. The region's recent rapid economic growth adds to its well-established tourism, farming, and state government sectors. This is an ideal area to live for those who enjoy a flexible lifestyle with a wide range of options for housing, schools, sports, activities and travel, a low cost of living, and an affordable housing market (the lowest in Maritimes and among the most affordable in Canada).

Small doesn't mean dull! The revitalized cities in the Greater Moncton area are vibrant and alive, home to both the largest indoor and outdoor entertainment facilities in Atlantic Canada. There are multiple parks for walking, biking, and general enjoyment. And just 20 minutes down New Brunswick's Northumberland Coast, you'll find the warmest beaches north of Virginia.

A robust healthcare system, world-class universities (including the French-speaking Université de Moncton), and New Brunswick's main airport all make this place attractive to people looking for a small-town atmosphere in a growing metropolitan area. Enjoy a mix of outdoor adventure and urban experiences, whether you're seeking relaxation, excitement, or family-friendly fun. You'll get to explore top New Brunswick attractions on the Fundy and Acadian coasts nearby, Greater Moncton's many golfing facilities, Magnetic Hill (a gravity hill optical illusion, where the local topography gives the impression that you are going uphill when in fact you are going downhill).

For shopping enthusiasts, the Northwest Centre, and the Wheeler Park Power Centre in Moncton, and CF Champlain in Dieppe are amongst the largest shopping malls in Atlantic Canada offering various stores and services.
